Dear Mr. Loose:

Thanks to a journey to Albania I met Bruce Ryder by chance and thus received your very informative letter of October 29, 1991. What a delightful coincidence that Bruce volunteered your expertise to help me solve a problem. I thank you both.

Being in the mountains of Albania did not help my memory so part of my question was inaccurate. Instead of John Wyeth I should have named William Dixon as printer in Lancaster.

However, I feel I must give you the problem I am working on. I am writing an article on the origin of the dollar sign($). I have finished the research on its written form and I have new earlier data on that. The work on its printed form is where I need to obtain further facts. The earliest printed use of the $ insignia as we now know it seems to be two pamphlets involving the renewal in Pennsylvania of the charter of the Bank of North America. Each is identical in text but the typeset differs. One was printed by John Wyeth of Harrisburg and the other by William Dixon of Lancaster. I enclose a copy of the Dixon printing. Both pamphlets are undated but they are a promotion for the renewal of the charter. They both use $ signs. The charter renewal was submitted to the Pennsylvania House on Feb. 5, 1799 and to the Senate in early March before being approved by the Governor on March 20, 1799. The propaganda must have been printed in outstate Pennsylvania to gather support from other than Philadelphia. I discovered these items in the Evans listing of printed American items. This meant that those printers had bought the type for the $ in 1798 or early 1799. The newspapers of Harrisburg printed by Wyeth do not use the $ until after 1799. I wonder how early the newspapers or other items in Lancaster printed by Dixon use the $? Which newspapers did he print and are they on microfilm or do they exist? These will be without question the earliest use of the traditional $ in print. The type was bought in Philadelphia from Binney and Ronaldson of Philadelphia, but I don't know when. If it turns out to be used in the Lancaster Intelligencer or Lancaster Journal, the present combined newspaper will probably want to make a feature out of it. The Philadelphia Aurora did not use it until 1801.

Please keep this material confidential until I publish it at which time you may use it as you wish. I hope you will be able to help me with it as I believe the problem will intrigue you. If there are any questions you have I will telephone you after you receive this letter or you may write us.

There is a symbol for the dollar printed in 1797 but it is not the same as the traditional one which we now use.

Again my thanks, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Eric P. Newman

DEAR MR NEWMAN:

RICHARD PICKER HAS SUGGESTED THAT YOU MAY BE ABLE TO HELP ME. I AM ENGAGED IN A NUMISMATIC STUDY OF WILLIAM PENN(1644-1718), THE END RESULT OF WHICH WILL BE A PUBLISHED MONOGRAPH OF ALL KNOWN MEDALLIC PORTRAITS OF PENN.

SOURCE MATERIAL IS SCARCE. BETTS LISTS 2 MEDALS AND THERE IS ONE IN KENNY'S"SO-CALLED DOLLARS." BEYOND THIS I HAVE HAD TO RELY ON PERSONAL INQUIRY AND LETTER. MY PENN COLLECTION, THEREFORE, HAS BEEN THE BASIS FOR MOST OF THE INFORMATION I HAVE ACQUIRED TO DATE.

IF YOU KNOW OF ANYTHING THAT HAS BEEN PUBLISHED ON THIS SUBJECT, PLEASE ADVISE WHEN AND WHERE. I WOULD ALSO APPRECIATE VISUAL DESCRIPTIONS OF ANY PENN MEDALS OR TOKENS KNOWN TO YOU. IF THE LIST IS TOO LONG, I COULD SEND YOU A CATALOG OF MY COLLECTION AND HAVE YOUR COMMENTS ON VARIETIES OR ADDITIONS.

IN BRIEF, MY COLLECTION CONTAINS PINGO'S MEDAL OF 1775, ROGAT'S OF 1842, MORGAN'S MINT MEDALS OF 1882, LOVETT'S OF 1882 AND SEVERAL OTHERS OF THE SAME YEAR WHICH ARE UNSIGNED. THERE IS A LARGER GROUP OF MEDALS, ALSO UNSIGNED, FROM FOUNDER'S WEEK IN 1908. THEN THE PENNSYLVANIA NATIONAL GUARD MEDALS FOR WORLD WAR ONE AND THE MEXICAN BORDER SERVICE IN 1916, JOHN FLANAGAN'S MEDAL FOR THE PENNSYLVANIA SOCIETY IN 1921 AND JULIO KILENYI'S MEDAL OF 1932.

ANY SUGGESTIONS YOU MAY CARE TO MAKE WOULD BE WELCOME NOW OR IN FUTURE.

Enclosed is a copy of the 1934 C series #10 Federal Reserve Note which I spoke with you about today.

I believe the picture of the White House was supposed to be changed on this note to include the balcony and to show opened windows.

As you can see, this note still carries the 1928 series picture.

I was wondering if you could verify whether or not I am correct, and if so whether or not this a common error.

Thank you for your interest in this regard

Dear Allen:

During our brief contact in Atlanta you told me that you were a member of the family of Elijah P. Lovejoy, and I told you that his monument in Alton was in need of repair and that I thought a movie of his life was being made.

I came home and called Reverend Tabscott of the Des Peres Prebyterian Church in St. Louis County to get the facts.

The movie is completed except for editing and will be shown for the first time on November 13, 1987 at Lewis and Clark Community College in Alton, Illinois, in connection with the 150th anniversary of Elijah P. Lovejoy's death. The movie cost $150,000 to make and $125,000 has been raised already according to Tabscott.

An attempt to sell the movie to public television will be made. Other arrangements for it to be shown are possible. It is 58 minutes long. How would you like to come to see it on its first showing? I find that the Lovejoy monument is owned by the State of Illinois which has appropriated $30,000 for repairs to it.

You probably won't believe it, but I am writing a numismatic article which ties in the American anti-slavery token and Elijah Lovejoy.

Are there many other members of the family who are interested as there were many in prominent places at the 100 year celebration in 1937?

My kindest regards,

Dear Eric,

Thank you so much for your letter and the package.

The Heath was particularly nice and much better than your description. In your letter of 2/24/88, you made reference to our being unhappy with the 1762 almanac which you sent. It was not so much a matter of our being unhappy (not only did we find it neat and the only one either of us had ever seen, but also we were well aware of its substantial monetary value). Rather, we are Heath "junkies"; we've never met a Heath we didn't like.

If by chance you have "extra" Heath's which you would wish to consign, sell, or trade for whatever, please let us know. In fact, should you have any numismatic literature of which you might be willing to dispose, we are in the process of cataloguing our May mail-bid sale. We are also planning a significant autumn sale of numismatic literature: distinctive works from consignors of distinction.

Finally, we genuinely appreciate your gift of two copies of Early Paper Money of America. We are also most grateful for your letters, time, and good thoughts. At some point, we hope we will be able to reciprocate.

Thank you for the nice comments in your auction list about my research. I consider it more of your humor.

You tease me in Lot 507 with what you indicate is a possible new variety of Heath bar. If you will read what you wrote about the book, you will find that you have created a surplusage of words rendering your observations somewhat obfuscating. Would you be nice enough to try describing it again for me.

Incidentally, what you described as an "unnumbered plate" of Nat. Bank Note Co. is Plate 2, as you noted earlier in the description. When you repeat yourself, you should repeat it the same way you first said it (like in "read my lips").

Illustration:

Gloucester Token (Both sides).

Copy:

Many things began in Virginia. One of the most important was the first American businessman to make money.

Richard Dawson of Gloucester, Virginia struck (in brass) coins valued at one shilling. The coins were sold to other merchants as an exchange medium to replace trading and to stimulate direct purchasing.

Virginia businessmen were quick to spot a way to improve business. This habit has stuck. Making money began in Virginia and is regarded as a time-honored pursuit.

In fact, they're making more than ever. Virginians know which side their butter is coined on.

Write for details. Your firm can continue Virginia's tradition of making money.

Dear Mr. Lorden:

Your letter of October 3, 1958, is at hand. In doing any research I can only assure you you have a lot of work ahead of you to know what has been published in the past. It is most difficult to locate source material because indices are miserable. You should go over the AJN index, The Numismatist index, Sigler's Bibliography, the Old Coin Collector's Journal index, check the ANS Library index, look through Mason's Coin and Stamp Journal, a great many of the auction catalogues containing medals, particularly the Chapman, Elder, Woodward, Cogan, Mehl, and other sales but, above all, I think I would go to the American Philosophical Society, in Philadelphia, and see what their indices show. They may have an index covering medals of William Penn. Likewise, the Philadelphia Library Company should be able to give you information.

I, personally, know practically nothing about the subject. If there is some particular bibliographical problem which you have, I will be glad to guide you further but, in the meantime, you have so much work to do it ought to hold you for quite a time. The only way to do a good job is to dig into everything which has been done in the past - which is the way Fuld and others do.

Good luck, and kindest personal regards.

John Lorenzo August 13, 2002

Dear John:

After reading your letter of July 22, 2002 after I returned from my vacation I went to the bank to visit my Vlack 20-87C Machins. It is a beautiful red brown uncirculated piece with a small planchet crack. The date is almost all on the planchet except for the lower stem of the last 7 and a tiny part of the lower loop of the 8. I compared both dies to the pictures you sent. No dentils show on my piece at the lowest point of the reverse.

Your piece has a slightly different form of the top of the 8 as you pointed out. Everything else seems identical to my coin. Why your piece looks the way it does I do not know. The planchet before striking might have had an irregular lump in this small area. A tiny blob of copper metal could have gotten between the die and the planchet when the coin was struck. The die could have been dropped or damaged before its last usage. I see no evidence that the die was modified deliberately. Your piece is quite worn and has dings in it and this makes it more difficult to diagnose.

Thank you for submitting your problem and keep working on it. I also thank you for a reason to look at my piece which may be from the Stepney Hoard as I didn't care much about that factor in 1952 when I believe I got it through my request to Walter Breen as to what happened to the counterfeit halfpence in the Stepney Hoard. He wrote me that Stacks kept the halfpence in a drawer with other similar pieces and when Stacks located them for me I was the fortunate purchaser. That became the subject of my 1958 ANS centennial article on Machins Mills and Vermont coinage.

Thrive,

Eric P. Newman

Dear Miss Richards:

My wife and I were delighted to talk to you on Friday about our various historical projects.

The reverse die for the Confederate Half Dollar was given to the Louisiana Historical Society by J.Sanford Saltus in 1922 and the gift is written up in the Louisiana Historical Quarterly. This die was used in the New Orleans Mint in 1861 with an obverse United States die to strike only 4 Confederate Half Dollars. Silver was not available for further strikings.

Location of this die has been the subject of our inquiry for many years. The die has not been seen or heard of since the date of the gift so far as we can ascertain. If the Louisiana Historical Society's collection was turned over to your museum the die should be there now. We know of no proper basis for it to have been removed from the Louisiana Historical Society collection.

We have heard much about Mr. Parsons and the problems of the Louisiana Historical Society. Do you have the die among your uncatalogued items? Was it ever turned over to you? We understand that you have some items from the New Orleans Mint and wonder if the die could have been put with them. Locating the die would help you gain national support to revitalize the mint building project. Have you any information on the die which you could furnish us?

Please express our thanks to Miss Nadine Russell for her kind suggestions as to this matter.

Mrs. Caroline Loughlin [redacted] December 21, 1999

Dear Caroline:

You are in Boston and I have a small Boston problem. You like intriguing research as much as I do. I am preparing an article on the spelling of MASATHVSETS on the 1652 dated coinage and this unusually strange spelling has been noticed by many, but never to my knowledge commented upon as to why. It involves the first coinage in the American colonies, popularly known as the Pine Tree shillings. I wrote a monograph on the subject about 1957, following studies published by Sylvester Crosby in 1875 and by Sidney Noe about 1950. My current article is substantially complete and is enclosed in rough form.

This is a request which needs your input. If you turn me down I won't wish that you were in Macaw. You may even enjoy the important research and you will be given full credit for doing so. If you had not tentatively left St. Louis I would not have a reason to ask you. So here goes:

The Records of the Governor and Company of the Massachusetts Bay in New England were published 150 years ago in typeset form from the original manuscript documents. The original manuscript is in the Massachusetts Archives which is not downtown but near the Kennedy Center. A microfilm of the manuscript is there. I am told it is complex to see the microfilm or obtain a copy or print from it. Why it is difficult I do not know. I would like to obtain a copy of a few specific portions of the manuscript where MASATUSETTS is used there three times on page 164 of the printed text (p. 229 of the manuscript text) being under the date of 14 May 1649 and a copy of MATATUSETS on page 196 of the printed text (p. 226 of the manuscript text) under the date of 23 May 1650. If the first T of the 1649 entry is an improper transcription or unreadable writing it proves my point. The same is true of the second entry but that is obviously an error in copying the long S as a T. It would be good to have proof of that also as well as the second T.

On June 7, 1650, page 198 of the printed text you will note that MASSACHUSETS is used four times and this is a standard alternate.

If you have any questions I am here to answer them. Telephone [redacted]

You will be classified as expert doll if you can help me. I am all butterflies waiting for your reply.

Best to you and Phil for the holidays. We miss you.

Re: Further on the Khazars

Dear Eric:

The Khazars (I confused the name with the people of Kazakstan who lived further east in Siberia) were Turkish or Altaic in ethnical relation who appeared in the area north of the Caucasus early in the third century. They reached their greatest expansion in the ninth century when their empire spread north to the Middle Volga, west to the Dneiper, and south to the Crimea and Black Sea. In the eighth century, due partly to pressures from the Caliphate in Baghdad to adopt the Islamic faith and pressures from from the Patriarch in Constantinople to become Christians, either of which choices would have disrupted the Khazars' trade with the other country, the Khakan or ruler of the Khazars and his followers converted to Judaism. The strategy worked; the Khazars developed a prosperous trading economy, founded several important commercial cities and commanded a large trade with Moscow and Constantinople. In the late ninth century, the Muscovite Russians defeated the Khazars in war and took over their empire. The Khazars, as a people, disappeared from history. They are believed by some scholars to have been the ancestors of many of the Jewish people of Russia, Poland, Hungary and Rumania.

The book about the Khazars to which I referred was published in the 1970's. Unfortunately, I gave it away, needing more room in my library, and do not recall the title. However, there are so few books on the Khazars, I think a good reference library might have a copy or be able to obtain a copy for you.

I am sending a copy of this letter to Roger since he, too, had never heard of the Khazars.

Sincerely,

Allen

March 29, 1963

Dear Mr. Lowdermilk

There are several varieties of the 1828 half dollar. Depending on whether thw 2 has a flat base or a curled base and depending on whether it has a pointed top end or a ball on the end of the 2, in fine condition, these varieties will range from $3 to $50, depending on which variety you have.

The 1835 half dollar is reasonably common. The condition, naturally, would be determinative as to their value.

I hope I have been helpful.

Dear Ken:

I like the appellation "Heath junky" which you give yourselves. Maybe I am one also, butI have tried to take the cure.

We can surely help each other. As you may or may not know, I am writing a monograph on the Heaths. All information is, therefore, begged for. I have a nice collection of Heaths and a very few need substitute pages or plates from other copies. Thus, if you have any incomplete ones, let me know. Maybe I'll steal from yours, or you steal from my incompletes. In any event, cannibalizing can be very helpful. This includes both large and small varieties.

Why not tell me what Heaths you have - size, edition, copyright date, thousand (if applicable) and text and color of cover.

I don't sell anything so as to remain non-commercial. If I find something in your next auction, or otherwise, then I'll send enough to offset and enable you to make a nickel.

Regards,

Eric P. Newman

Mr. Newman;

The note you penned on the bottom of our subscription form has just come to my attention.

We do indeed owe you some Scientific Americans (one of the more interesting legacies left the new management by Mr. Swann), but we really can't continue to send you free catalogues on that account.

Mr. Newman, you did pay for your subscriptions in the past, and there is really no reason not to do so again.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Luck:

Your advertising is very clever and should be provoking.

In Massachusetts Bay the Assembly, on February 21, 1700(1) prohibited the circulation of private tokens because "some persons for private gain have of late presumed to stamp and emit pieces of brass and tin at the rate of one penny each". No such tokens are known to exist today nor are they described in any records; however, you must protect yourself against this situation.

My suggestion is that the Massachusetts tokens can be circumvented by changing your copy to read "the first American businessman to make money honestly made it in Virginia." I use the word "honestly" because the Massachusetts tokens were prohibited by law.

You should also add "honestly" or "legally" to the second sentence of the copy.

In order to be accurate, we suggest that you change the second paragraph of the copy to read, generally, as follows:

> "Richard Dawson of Gloucester County, Virginia struck (in brass) coins of a one shilling denomination. These were circulated as a medium of exchange to simplify barter and to stimulate trade."

September 28, 1993

Dear Harrison:

I am glad you are installed in Sarasota.

I have cleaned up and patched your paper money to some extent. I cannot put back the missing parts, but in one case I combined one note with part of another.

Due to the new revenue act passed as part of the "budget" act the fair market value of a gift to a charitable organization of items related to that charitable organization's purpose is deductible without regard to cost value. If you are in a decent income tax bracket the combination of the federal plus the Missouri rates for 1993 would be 40% more or less. You would get a contribution deduction to the extent of any gifts. Selling them to a dealer would involve obtaining only about 50% of their fair value because dealers want to make a nice profit on everything they handle. The poor condition on some of the bills makes their selling value very small as people like choice condition.

My thought is to give some to appropriate charities and perhaps to sell some. My own museum could use one each of different kinds of the Nantucket pieces and the Mass depression scrip. The Whaling Museum in Nantucket might be pleased to have the second best of the Nantucket pieces because they are from the whaling period. I would like to check the American Numismatic Society in New York for the 1886 silver certificate to see if they have it or not and perhaps a couple of others.

Some can be sold if it won't cause you an income tax problem in reporting any gain. The paper money market like other things is somewhat depressed now but the quoted prices of some of the items are as follows in a recent catalog. These are quite optimistic retail values but could be used for appraisal purposes as well.

$5 Boston Fed. Reserve White Mellon	unc	$125
$2 silver cert. 1886 Large Red Seal	fine	$225 (yours not that nice)
$2 US Note 1917 Speelman White	unc	$150
50¢ Fractional US (Stanton)	v.g.	$ 10

Of course if you want to give more to my museum that will be most appreciated as we trade off duplicates for things we do not have. My museum has full status as an operating not for profit foundation. We will obtain appraisals for you for anything you give to us or any other organization.

You may want to do some giving in 1993 or delay it until 1994. Anything you may want to sell can wait until the market improves. We can talk over your decision or you can write me. My home telephone is [redacted] My office phone is [redacted] My fax is [redacted]

I hope we have been helpful.

Dear Mr. Newman:

I have been hoping to be able to arrange a visit to St. Louis at which time I could meet with you and make appropriate decisions about the paper money and "scrip" left with you for evaluation when my wife and I moved to Florida in a rather hasty business relocation in the summer of 1993. Age and health problems have crept up on both my wife and me, however, so we haven't been able to schedule such a trip.

Further, with regard to disposition of the old money, I am afraid I put so much of my modest property into a small company–making water treatment equipment–which has never done well that I must now look entirely to potential sales value and not to tax deductions.

Will you please, therefore, bundle up all the money that I left with you (except, of course, for the note which in your letter of September 28, 1993, you reported you had combined with part of another) and send it back to me by registered mail.

Meanwhile my heartiest thanks to you and your Numismatic Education Society for grading and caring for this money for me.

With best regards,

Sincerely,

Harrison Lyman
